

ADVANCING ETHICAL PRACTICE: EXPLORING THE GRAY AREAS

FEBRUARY 26 – 28, 2020

HYATT REGENCY CLEARWATER BEACH RESORT & SPA, CLEARWATER BEACH, FL

Healthcare ethical dilemmas are rarely black and white.

Advancing ethical practice in healthcare requires grappling with difficult, often complex ethical problems and dilemmas. Join a diverse group of ethicists, philosophers, nurses, and other healthcare professionals at the second biennial Carol Carfang Nursing & Healthcare Ethics Conference to address contemporary ethical issues in healthcare, and discuss solutions to the most challenging problems for ethical practice and policy.

Call for Abstracts

Submit an abstract for an opportunity to deliver a 15-20 minute presentation or share a poster on an ethical issue in healthcare. Abstracts will be reviewed on a rolling basis, ending on December 1, 2019. Questions? Email Dr. Eric Vogelstein at vogelsteine@duq.edu. Submit your abstract at duq.edu/nursingethics.

KEYNOTE PRESENTATIONS

The Dying Person: Ethical Challenges in End-of-Life Care

Daniel Sulmasy, MD, PhD, MACP

Acting Director and Senior Research Scholar

Andre Hellegers Professor of Biomedical Ethics

Kennedy Institute of Ethics | Georgetown University

Creating a Moral Space and Building Moral Resilience in Nurses

Katherine Brown-Saltzman, RN, MA

Co-Director of the UCLA Health System Ethics Center

Assistant Clinical Professor

School of Nursing | UCLA

Navigating Grey Areas: Insights from a Clinical Ethics Residency for Nurses

Pamela Grace, PhD, RN, FAAN

Associate Professor

Connell School of Nursing | Boston College

Health Inequities and Research: What Can Research Ethics Teach Us?

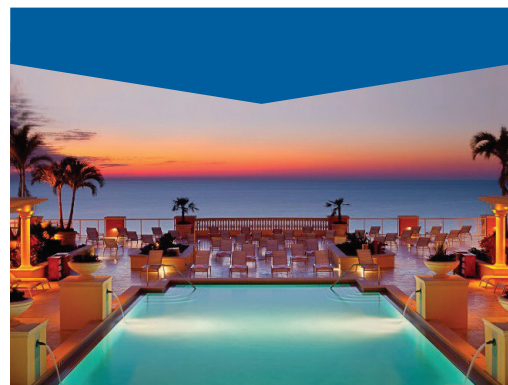

Ana Iltis, PhD

Director, Center for Bioethics, Health and Society

Professor of Philosophy, Carlson Professor of University Studies

Department of Philosophy | Wake Forest University

President-Elect, American Society for Bioethics and Humanities

Stay at the
Hyatt Regency
Clearwater Beach Resort & Spa
in beautiful, sunny Clearwater Beach, Florida in February 2020.

Learn more and register at
duq.edu/nursingethics

School of Nursing